

Dawn Caldwell - Executive Director
Fuel Ethanol Laboratory Conference

Renewable Fuels Nebraska (RFN) is the trade association for Nebraska's ethanol industry. We are a resource advocating for policy that ensures the growth and expansion of the nation's second largest renewable fuels industry through advocacy, market access, and public awareness. Ensuring the growth of the renewable fuels industry in Nebraska.

RFN Objectives

- Raise awareness of the viability of ethanol and other renewable fuels as part of the domestic fuel supply.
- Promote policies and programs to the state and local governments in Nebraska that support and encourage the development and use of renewable fuels.
- Serve as a resource for providing accurate information to the media and others with respect to renewable fuels and their markets, producers, distributors, and consumers.
- Seek to set forth the provision of resources for demonstrating the positive nature of ethanol and renewable fuels to the economy, environment, security, and stability of Nebraska.
- Encourage conversations that increase the greater public interest and knowledge concerning the production and use of ethanol and renewable fuels.
